OBSERVATIONS OF A SANDWICH

The Alligapt Family is a very happy and non-assertive group. They do an awful lot of things in one day, such as working, sailing, doing dishes, playing volleyball and hiking. That for one camper is really something - no wonder the big house is silent until that bell rings in the morning (sometimes as late as 9:00 o'clock). There was an overnight canoe trip and an island trip but for some reason this gang decided against climbing a mountain! (Well, maybe in August) The sail boats, although late into the water, have fared well in the races, especially with the arrival of "The Noble Art". For some reason the flounder have been evading the bait, but that is locking up. I'm sure those kids will be digging holes looking for clams/shells on my beach now that the red tide is off.

A pretty big group is leaving now, but for the last two weeks there should be an awful lot of fun. Next summer I expect to see the whole gang there for the six weeks, as the best weather always comes in August and the green-heads leave!

On July 26 Alligwappa had her usual Treasure Hunt. It was really exciting, involving intelligence, and endurance.

I've never seen people run so far, so fast. To Peacock's in 3 minutes!

Some teams had more luck than others for example one team lost the barn and were halfway to Sand Dollar when the game ended. Another had to run to Poppen turnoff and over the mountain to the Troll bridge.

Every one worked long and hard and seemed to enjoy themselves even though tempers were sometimes short. Inthe said the red team under Art's guidance won! I think everyone has to agree that whether they won or lost they all had a great time.

Overnight Trip to Jewel Island

Thursday, July 22, King and Nancy and thirteen campers and LJC's were driven to Harpwell where they were then chauffeured by whaler to Jewel Island, the setting of the overnight expedition. We set up camp in the traditional clearing established by Alligwappians years ago, then set out to investigate the island. We discovered paths to ruins of old army barracks and followed underground tunnels. The highlight of the WWII remains was the lookout towers which we proceeded to climb in order to view the entire island and surroundings.

We all congregated back at camp and began cooking our dinner of hot dogs and beans, and for desert, chocolate and marshmallows. Beans may have been a bad choice; they usually are -- however we all survived. The only casualty was Nancy H.'s bathing suit that accidentally got cooked in the fire, thanks to J.P. We stayed around the campfire all night (only those that were there will ever know of the conversation and jokes told then), and luckily it was a clear and fairly warm evening under the stars.

The sun arose at 5:30 AM and so did we. The morning was spent keeping the fire going and sipping hot chocolate, and then we had a final exploration of the island before packing up once again to return to camp. The trip was certainly a success and we all agreed we would have liked to stay on the island a few more days.

Here are some of the better clues for each team:

Peppan Turnoff

Your father's pig
 You just might dig
 For if you rephrase this line
 The next clue you will probably find.

Red Nun

Women of the robe
 Are dressed in black and white
 Why then the red attire
 For our Catholic friend in sight.

White Truck

Banging, Clanging, clamboring by
 You and I can only sigh
 At the great white heps
 Who's beginning to mope.

Horse Shoe Fit

The old gray mare ain't what she used to be
 Each year when the weather gets hot
 Because she loses a possession of hers
 Upon a beachy spot.

Hailbox

Masculinty they say
 Does abound here most everyday
 And it seems for sure
 To be stashed behind a special door.

Artist's Island

Seaborne clouds of dappled gray
 Painted on canvas on a sunny day
 Where can set my easel, let me see
 On an island possibly?

Sea Breeze

Something wet and cool
 It's not a cola nut
 Go there to sit on a stool
 And be worked upon.

Goose rock

Rocks and rolls
 Paradise of seagulls
 Duck duck.

Whinn's

Any hike without it
 Is nothing but tulle
 If you like cavities
 This stop is just for you.

Peacock's

There once were 6 birds
 Who spent sunny months in a big white house
 Now known to fish or drink
 They now live somewhere near.

Sand Dollar

Upon this sandy spot
 Many come to lookie & play
 Not seen in the fog
 But within the leap a frog

Billy's Jeep

There is an old man
 Who lives nearby
 He has a possession dear to our boats
 When they desire a lift to the sea.

TREASURES!!!!

Flowers, flowers, flowers
 Hidden outside the door
 But arrival of the campers
 Means their season is no more.

Scavenger Hunt Items

1. 3 reactions to Mrs. Mattison
2. 1 goose from goose rock
3. 3 lobster pegs
4. 13½ dead mosquitoes
5. 1 new row boat
6. 1 "yellow sheet"
7. The "Hermit" of Hermit Island
8. A Mark Eisner look
9. Some Afternoon Delight
10. 1 stone from the Troll Bridge
11. A Narragansett beer can
12. 1 dozen perriwinkles
13. 1 hobbit
14. 6 geese-a-laying
15. 3 lobster buoys
16. 3 tennis balls
17. a boat mooring
18. a new dance
19. a full can of beer from Dan Peacocks' refrig.
20. a hole (any type)
21. 1 Jay
22. A moss man and his mess
23. 10 barnicles
24. a cat (alive or dead)
25. a funny elephant joke
26. An Aborigine Seafood Delicacy & an Aborigine to eat it
27. 6 mussells
28. A lovely flower arrangement
29. snow
30. A modern sculpture with a title

What weird event is this? A scavenger hunt? You must be kidding! On Friday night, July 16, our planned evening included a Scavenger Hunt. The goal for each team was to come up with the thirty items on the above list. Many were tangible items; others were left to the imagination of each team. The three reactions to Mrs. M probably were the most crude - we need not go into them at this time. For those who were smart (or rather informed) they saved their lobster pegs from dinner. The unfortunate teams had to rummage through the garbage with flashlights searching for those minute objects. Lobster buoys, moorings, rowboats, barnicles, perriwinkles and mussells were all hauled, dragged, and scraped from the beach. The notable "new dance" went to George Bernstein for doing "the Adele shuffle". Chris K. and Mark E. trotted to Peacock's for what they deemed the most important article - that can of beer! Our favorite camp AM radio song, "Afternoon Delight" was demonstrated by all teams in the manner that the song suggests. (Diney and Amy especially enjoyed acting that one out). Of course the team that Mark E. was on had the advantage for Item #8. Team 3 had the pleasure of having a real native Australian, Monica, to depict the Aborigine! and as her delicacy to munch on she chose a lobster claw. Ashley was an example of one who chose a more crude substance to eat in his portrayal of an Aborigine, he ate SEAWEED! In conclusion, this evening required a crazy imagination; a sure thing an Alliquippa camper has. We thank the judges for their great sense of humor.

TED VOGEL

Ted Vogel can be very funny.

For instance, when we had the Scavenger Hunt King said, "Ted, where's your Hobbit?"

"Uh, uh he's in the perriwinkles."

Then King said, "Where's the aborigine to eat the seaweed?"

"He's, he's in the perriwinkles; no, no, he's in the seaweed and he was so hungry he ate himself."

Also, ask Ted his last name, he won't say his real last name, Vogel, he'll say Vogelz. Ask him for yourself, you'll find out he says Vogelz!

TALENT NIGHT

Friday, July 23 marked the eventful evening of Talent Night. With limited preparation time, each group came through with a spectacular presentation. Our panel of judges designated each skit with an appropriate award title. The results are as follows:

Mark Eisner bravely opened the show with a "semi-Johnny Carson" style monolog as he proceeded to announce new and unusual Alliquippa records set so far this year. Thank-you, Mark!

The dorm ultimately won with their original song, "Alliquippa", each verse commenting on their impressions of the counselors. The award for Most Originality & Effort was gracefully accepted by the Dorm.

The "Little Dorm" brought beauty and elegance into our living room with the "Miss Planet" contest, commentated by "Mother Mexico". They were acknowledged as the "Most Beautiful" group.

Diney's Dogs and Front Quarters together reinacted a take-off from our favorite T.V. show, and called it "The Bionic Family" - starring Louis Gordon as Steve Austin, Larry Blumenfeld as Bionic Woman, J.P. in a double role as Oscar and the Mad Scientist, Sean Sumner as Wonder Woman and a mysterious "Bionic Baby". This skit won "Best Screen Play".

The two "Sara's" led by Liddy and Amy (or the other way around) sang "They'll never grow up" and we know they mean it!!! This routine was unanimously "the cutest".

½ We give King and Ted the "Most Historical" award (in keeping with the bicentennial spirit of the season) as they stepped back into the time tunnel to the 1950's and sang us a "tough" song.

Ricka's Girls were voted to have the best props and scenery as they donned their rubber suits and boots and hopped aboard the "Rubber Ducky" singing their own rendition of the "Titanic".

The most outstanding script and dialog went to George B. and Tim Ullman (backed by Pig Alley & Back Quarters) for their unique and most humorous newscast.

Richie Wallace was cheered on to victory during his attempts to pin "Dear Ol' Dad" in a wrestling match. Certainly this received the "silliest" award.

All in all, this event was successful; whether this truly displayed the diverse talents this camp has to offer is questionable, however the smiles and laughter that were evident on

Times when the groups gathered at the close of the evening meal. THE- this night was 1975.

IMPORTANT NEWS FLASH . . . . .

In the month of July, 1975 things mysteriously disappeared from the Bern and Ricka's Girls room. Mostly edibles were taken which had been hidden in what was thought to be the most unobtrusive places. Only wrappers were carelessly left behind in some instances. THIS GAME HAS GONE ON LONG ENOUGH!!!! The people on the third floor do not appreciate it.

The Phantom

Alliquippa - (or how to go insane in style)

If you want to spend 4-6 weeks going crazy come to "Alliquippa", "Alliquippa", "Alliquippa", "Alliquippa House".

No, to tell you the truth you can become a habit in one week without extra charge, minus the corn beef hash.

But most would rather be crazy. Wonder why?? Here are two examples: Marc and Anne - weird aren't they - who else goes to the dump?? "Hi Adole!"

"I want the leopard shorts! Watch the baby hang, see the baby hang".

And the menu for this week:

- Monday - doggie biscuits
- Tuesday - doggie biscuits
- Wednesday - " "
- Thursday - " "
- Friday - " "
- Saturday - " "
- Sunday - We don't eat
(we're into varities)

Now we'll take a short hike to Portland, but be back for rest hour.

I wonder where all of the cookies are?
Vanilla Pudding, Vanilla Pudding, SNOW PUDDING????
You must be kidding!

"I'm not that type of 'goyle'"

Listen . . . one cream sausage special and no more! I'm not your mother and I HATE yelling, huh, you've got to remember "THERE ARE PEOPLE BEHIND YOU".

I am just fine . . . I'll be alright. Just give me a minute. PLEASE!

"My little girl does your. . . ."

The Dora's Winning Talent Night Song - "Alliquippa"

Chorus:

Alliquippa, Alliquippa that's how it goes
Alliquippa, Alliquippa that's what we chose
We love this camp from our head to our toes
Alliquippa, we love you.

Tracy & Betty

The ones who are the bosses
Are Dick & Dottie Wallace
They run this whole camp without a doubt
If you are a fool
And disobey a rule
Don't be too surprised if they kick you right out.
(chorus)

Ferri & Seena

One of our cooks, Helene
Can really cause a scene
Whenever she serves veal that tastes like a fish.
We've never seen her take a lot of what she makes
It probably makes her stomach go "awish".
(chorus)

Ferri & Seena

And then there's always Teddy
Who keeps the girls ready
He tries to find reasons to be with them all.
While sailing or on land
He keeps them right at hand
Whenever he wants us he just has to call. (chorus)

Natalie & Lisa

Ricker-racker firecracker
Is really quite a smacker
Even Leonardo would say that to you
She really is quite nice
But take our advice
She has given in to very few. (chorus)

Natalie & Lisa

Our great counselor, Nancy
Knows our dora's not too fancy
She has to put up with us all anyway.
She never does complain
Though she may go insane
And we all do nothing but sit by and sing. . . . (chorus)

Nancy & Adèle

We can't forget Bert Flower
Who used to have great power
When he brought Molly to live on our ground.
She really was a hit
With all of her
But now it's not bad 'cause she's not around. (chorus)

Tracy & Betty

Another of our cooks
Who has such pretty locks
But makes her still so terribly bad
Merica's her name
And burning is her game.
It's probably just one of her feds.
(Chorus)

Nancy & Adele

King is his name
He lives up to the name
But all of us secretly know otherwise
His ~~name~~ is the greatest
His choice of girls the latest
All of this sometimes makes his ego rise.
(Chorus)

Terri & Susan

Any / Liddy, they take care of the kiddies
They chase those toddlers all over the place
The 'Sara's' keep them busy
And often get them dizzy
Sometimes their efforts just go to waste.

Alliquippa, Alliquippa, that's how it goes
Alliquippa, Alliquippa that's what we chose
We love this camp from our head to our toes.
Alliquippa, we love you.

REMEMBER

Remember please the trips to Sewall,
Also remember the games of velleyball.
How the boats were all at the deck
and how we talked around the clock.
Please don't forget our Saturday dances,
and how they gave us so many chances.
And don't forget our many sail races
and most of all our silly faces.
Please don't forget our short work hour,
and taking an 11 O'clock hot water shower.
Remember Grant, remember Lee,
To hell with them, remember me!!
